Medal of Honor Citation:

For extraordinary heroism and conspicuous gallantry in action above and beyond the call of duty in combat against enemy Japanese forces in the Solomon Island Area on Oct. 26, 1942. When the enemy broke through the line directly in front of his position, Platoon Sgt. Paige, commanding a machine-gun section with fearless determination, continued to direct the fire of his gunners until all of his men were either killed or wounded. Alone, against the deadly hail of Japanese shells, he manned his gun, and when it was destroyed, took over another, moving from gun to gun, never ceasing his withering fire against the advancing hordes until reinforcements finally arrived. Then, forming a new line, he dauntlessly and aggressively led a bayonet charge, driving the enemy back preventing a break through in our lines. Had that position fallen, it would have surely led the enemy to recapture Henderson Field.

His great personal valor and unyielding devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest traditions of the Marine Corps and the U.S. Naval Service.
